WakuStone is a new type of ceramic material, using ceramic tailings, fly ash, coal gangue, inorganic sludge and other industrial solid waste as the main raw material, using precise foaming control technology, after 1200 degrees high temperature sintering to form a high porosity low density porcelain material.

WakuStone is a green material, which is always implemented in the production process. The proportion of industrial solid waste in the production of raw materials is more than 90%, and the solid waste output rate in the production process is less than 1%.

The WakuStone offers superior performance and a wide range of applications, both indoors and outdoors.
